

The Magnetic Component according to Dr. Aschoff

The energetic force of natural water

In addition to the chemical properties of water, the naturaquell water purification process is also taking into consideration the physical structure of natural spring water.

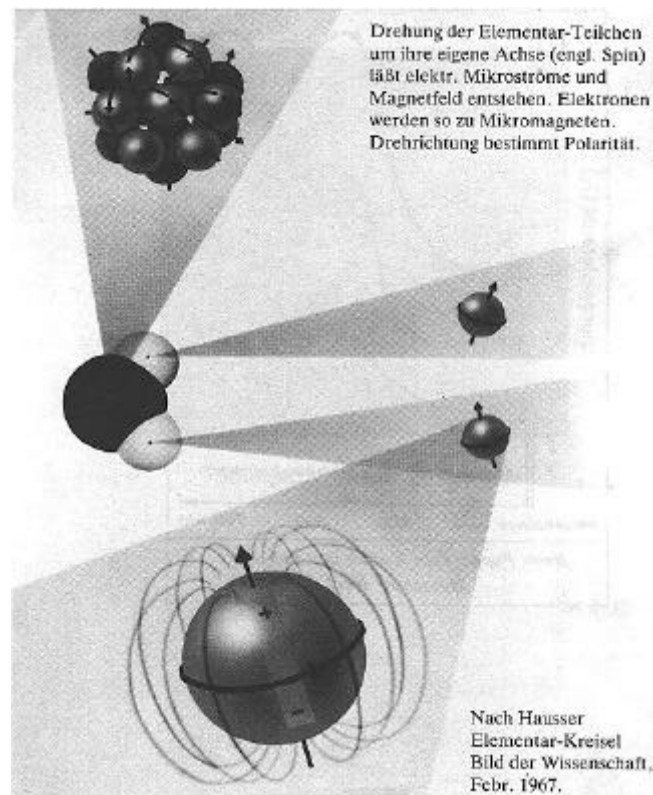

Distorting information caused by civilisation (water pipe network, processing) are possibly modulating the public drinking water. This unwanted modulation however can be rectified by the magnetic component, whereupon the water molecules are re-arranged towards the terrestrial magnetic field.

The same applies to the human organs and blood. The loss of these properties eventually means the loss of vitality and health.

In this respect Dr. Aschoff developed the magnetic component to be employed in the naturaquell water processing technology in order to retain the natural magnetic orientation of water.

Function Principles:

The spin (rotation) of elementary particles about their axis

Micro-currents and magnetic fields are generated through the orientation of all elementary particles about their axis. Hence, electrons are becoming micro-magnets whereby the sense of rotation is determining the polarity.
